Cyprus is a small country with a long history and a rich culture. It is not surprising that UNESCO included the Pafos antiquities, Choirokoitia and ten of the Byzantine period churches of Troodos in its list of World Heritage Sites.

The aim of this publication is to help visitors discover the cultural heritage of Cyprus. The qualified personnel at any Information Office of the Cyprus Tourism Organisation (CTO) are happy to help organise your visit in the best possible way. Parallel to answering questions and enquiries, the Cyprus Tourism Organisation provides, free of charge, a wide range of publications, maps and other information material. Some Information Offices house easy-to-use digital info display screens. Additional information is available at the CTO website: www.visitcyprus.com

It is an unfortunate reality that a large part of the island’s cultural heritage has since July 1974 been under Turkish occupation. This heritage has been subjected to severe damage. The occupation force has been systematically trying to alter the demography and cultural identity of the area under their occupation.

A country’s cultural heritage is the most important living treasure of its people. It is through this that its identity can be expressed and an awareness of its historical continuity through time can be created. Cyprus is the third largest island in the Mediterranean. It is situated at the crossroads of three continents – Europe, Asia and Africa. This geographic position has since antiquity played an important part in the island’s turbulent history. Its prehistoric age inhabitants were joined by the Mycenaean Greeks 3500 years ago, who introduced and established their civilisation, thus permanently instilling the island’s Greek roots. Many other cultures followed since then, including Phoenicians, Assyrians, Franks, Venetians, Ottomans, British, all leaving behind visible traces of their passage.

On this island once walked Christ’s apostles. The splendour of the Byzantine Empire for many centuries encapsulated Cyprus. The island is an open-air museum, where one can visit prehistoric settlements, classical Greek temples, Roman theatres and villas, early Christian basilicas, Byzantine churches and monasteries, Crusader castles, Gothic cathedrals, Venetian fortifications, Moslem mosques and British colonial-style buildings.

In the villages one can still observe old ways of life, customs and traditions. Here, festivities whose origins hark back to the depths of antiquity are still being celebrated. These include Carnival and the Flower Festivals. Aphrodite, the ancient Greek Olympian goddess of beauty and love, who according to mythology was born on the island, still roams her beloved Pafos and the “Sweet land of Cyprus”, omnipresent in the bright atmosphere, the beauty of the landscape and the charm of the local people. At Kouklia, where once stood her great temple, now stands a church fittingly known as the church of “Panagia Aphroditissa”.

The immortal verses of the ancient Greek playwrights still reverberate on a balmy summer evening at the ancient theatre of Kourion and the Pafos Odeion, where classical Greek plays are regularly staged. And in the month of September, wine flows copiously and the spirit of Dionysos, the Greek god of wine and well-being, lives on throughout the duration of the Wine Festival. Popular medieval songs can still be heard on the island reviving the legends of Digenis, the invincible folk hero of the Byzantine era and the unfettered Rigaina, the beautiful Amazonian queen. Cyprus, as the easternmost part of Europe, constitutes a cultural bridge between people of different religions, cultures and ways of life.
The very first signs of permanent settlement in Cyprus date from the Neolithic age (8200-3800 BC). While copper is mined in small quantities during the next period, the Chalcolithic (3800-2400 BC) age, this brings about only minor changes in the way of life of the people. In both the Neolithic and the Chalcolithic ages the Cypriots lived in single room dwellings, used stone tools and vessels, made jewellery out of picrolite, ate fish, cereals, lamb and goat’s meat and buried their dead within their settlements. The earliest pottery found dates back to the 5th millennia BC.

The first significant cultural changes affecting all aspects of society took place around 2400-2200 BC, towards the end of the Chalcolithic age and at the beginning of the Early Bronze age. Instead of building cylindrically-shaped dwellings, people began to construct multi-room oblong structures, started to process copper in jewellery, applied the plough for agriculture and began to bury their dead in organised cemeteries. Despite the fact that these developments contributed to the economic growth that occurred both during the Early (2400-1900 BC) and Middle (1900-1650 BC) Bronze age periods, people still lived in small hinterland villages. Communication and trade with the surrounding Mediterranean lands was limited.

The Late Bronze age (1650-1050 BC) was the first period of prehistoric Cyprus when tangible and irrefutable evidence exists that a number of significant developments occurred. These include the establishment of coastal towns, intensive mining of copper and other metals, development of a writing script, contact and trade with the neighbouring regions of Egypt, the Middle East, the Aegean and the wider Eastern Mediterranean area.

From the latter part of the 13th century BC successive waves of mainland Greeks begin to settle in Cyprus. Hence, Mycenaean pottery is imported in great quantities from the Aegean (Greece) and used extensively, both in everyday life as well as for religious ceremonies. Later it is reproduced locally and incorporated in the island’s ceramic tradition.
Two major developments marked the transition from the Prehistoric age to Historic periods – the first was political and the second technological.

The first major development was the establishment of new city-kingdoms. Up until the 11th century BC, all the large cities of the Late Bronze age had been destroyed by natural causes, possibly earthquakes. Folk tales that the new towns were created by heroes of the Trojan War on their return from the conflict correlate to historical facts, namely the last wave of Achaean Greek settlement, which led to the eventual hellenisation of Cyprus, with the adoption of Greek culture and language. From the 10th century BC onwards the ties between Cyprus and Greek islands such as Evia and Crete became particularly close.

The second major development was the use of iron in metallurgy, which marked the start of a new era, the Iron age. At first iron was used only in jewellery, but it gradually replaced copper in tool making. The Iron age includes the Geometric period, in view of the fact that geometrical motifs were mainly used in decorating pottery. This period coincided with the arrival of the Phoenicians in Cyprus and their colonisation of the large coastal Mycenaean city of Kition. Typical Phoenician black-on-red colour pottery was introduced and later produced locally on the island.

The beginning of the next period, the Archaic period (750-480 BC), was marked by the subjugation of Cyprus to the Assyrians. During this period, the Cypriot city-kingdoms of Salamis, Kition, Amathous, Kourion, Idalion, Palaipafos, Marion, Soloi and Tamassos remained independent for as long as they were in a position to pay a subjugation tax to the Assyrian ruler. After the rule of the Assyrian hegemony, the Egyptian Pharaoh Amasis took over Cyprus. Typical of this period were the strong Greek and eastern influences evident in all aspects of life, more so in art and religion.
During the Classical period (480-310 BC) Cyprus found itself in the middle of the Greco-Persian Wars. The Greek strategy was to drive the Persians off all Greek lands, including Cyprus, where they succeeded just for a short period, between 450 and 449 BC, when the Athenian fleet led by Kimon took over Marion, liberated Soloi and besieged Kition.

Despite this, Cyprus did eventually become part of the Persian Empire, though still maintaining its independence to a large degree. During the rule of Evagoras of Salamis (411-374 BC) Cyprus developed into one of the most important political and cultural centres of the Hellenic world. Evagoras rebelled against the Persians, but after a lengthy war was forced to sign a peace treaty with Persia. Throughout Persian rule, Greek influences on Cyprus were very strong. Deities of the Greek pantheon were introduced and Greek artists were assigned to create the seals of the coins to be minted for use by the Cypriot city-kingdoms.

Persian rule came to an end during the Hellenistic period (310-30 BC) during Alexander the Great's campaign to the East. After Alexander’s death, Ptolemy, one of his successors, became ruler of the island. Strong influences of Alexandria, the capital of the new Ptolemaic kingdom of Egypt, are evident in all areas of art, such as sculpture, ceramics and statuette making. During the Ptolemaic period Cyprus was mainly used as a military base. The Ptolemies exploited the island’s natural resources, such as copper, timber for the construction of ships, olives and wheat.

The Romans, who conquered Cyprus after the Ptolemies, mainly exploited its copper mines. Although the Roman period proper is said to have begun in 58 BC, Cyprus did not come under Roman rule until 30 BC. During the Roman period (30 BC-330 AD), the name of Cyprus became synonymous with the Latin equivalent name for copper (cuprum). Under Roman rule, as a result of trade Cyprus enjoyed a three hundred year period of economic growth. One of the main exports at the time was decorative Cypriot pottery. Cypriot jewellery and glassware copied the decorative styles of Roman craft shops. At the start of the Roman period burial tombs were particularly rich, often containing exquisite golden jewellery and crafted glassware.

A landmark in the history of Cyprus during the Roman period was the conversion of the island to Christianity by the Apostles Paul and Barnabas, starting in 45 AD.
In 330 AD the capital of the Roman Empire was moved from Rome to Constantinople. Christianity was declared the official religion of the state. In 395 AD the Roman Empire was split into the Western Roman Empire and the Eastern Roman Empire. The Eastern part, also known as the Byzantine Empire, included Cyprus, from the 4th to the 12th centuries. During the Early Christian-Early Byzantine period, between the 4th and 7th centuries, the church of Cyprus succeeded with great effort to remain autocephalous, fully independent and to increase its influence considerably. In 488 AD Byzantine Emperor Zeno accorded the Archbishop of Cyprus and his successors the privileges of wearing a purple cloak during official ceremonies, holding an imperial sceptre and signing in red ink. Archbishop Anthemios, wishing to express his gratitude to the Emperor for ratifying that the Church of Cyprus would be autocephalous, presented him St. Barnabas’ manuscript of St. Mathew’s Gospel, which Archbishop Anthemios had discovered in the Apostle’s tomb near Salamis. A monastery dedicated to St. Barnabas was erected on the spot where his tomb was discovered. St. Barnabas is considered to be the founder of the Church of Cyprus.

Peace prevailed in Cyprus during the first centuries of the Byzantine period. New cities sprung up, while others were abandoned as a result of major destructive earthquakes. The capital of Cyprus was moved from Pafos to Salamis-Constantia, near which the town of Arsinoe-Ammochostos (Famagusta) developed from the 7th century. Amathous remained an important centre since Roman times, while a new city was established nearby, Neapolis or Nemesos, later becoming Lemesos, in the Frankish period. The old city of Ledra was replaced by Lefkosia (Nicosia), which eventually became the capital of Cyprus sometime between the 11th and 12th century.

The silk industry, which the Byzantines introduced clandestinely from China, originally developed in the 6th century and grew to become one of the most lucrative handicrafts on the island. The shipbuilding yards of Cyprus continued to produce wooden ships on a large scale, while an aqueduct was built in Salamis, funded by the Byzantine Emperor Heraklios. The silver and goldsmith industries flourished, as evidenced by precious plates with depictions of the life of David, part of the discovered treasure of Lambousa (Lapithos). Some of the plates are now exhibited in the Cyprus Museum in Lefkosia (Nicosia), while other objects from the collection are housed in the British Museum and the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York.

Ecclesiastical art flourished in Cyprus, adopting elements from the Greco-Roman tradition, as well as eastern elements. The island’s first churches were built based on the Roman basilica model of an elongated oblong area, divided by a row of columns into archways and aisles. As time went by domes and arches were added and various types developed around the shape of a cross. The most important examples of architecture during this period are the early Christian wooden-roofed basilicas decorated with frescoes. The most important ones are those of Lambousa, Chrysopolitissa at Kato Pafos, Kambanopetra in Constantia, Agia Triada in Gialousa, Panagia Kanakaria in the Karpas peninsula, Kourion and Agios Georgios in Pegeia. Three rare mosaics that still survive inside the apses of three early Christian basilicas depict the artistic connection between Cyprus and Constantinople. The oldest of the three mosaics was the one in the apse of the now occupied church of Panagia Kanakaria in the Karpas peninsula, the one in the best condition is found in the apse of the church of Panagia Angeloktisti at Kiti, while the third is in the church of Panagia Kyra, in the occupied village of Livadia, near Famagusta. The basilicas were destroyed by the Arab raids that took place between the 7th and 10th centuries, but the mosaics were spared because they were incorporated into subsequent churches.

Cyprus acquired particular importance to Byzantium and to Islam in the 7th century as a result of the conflict between the powers of the time. The Arab raids against Cyprus began in 648-649 AD and continued until 965 AD, when Emperor Nicephorus II Phocas finally defeated them. Up until the 12th century the Byzantines built castles and fortifications along the Pentadaktylos mountain range at St Hilarion, Voufavento and Kantara, as well as the monasteries at Kykkos, Machairas and Agios Neophytos.
In 1191, the king of England, Richard the Lionheart, foresaw the strategic importance of Cyprus as a base for supplying the forces taking part in the Third Crusade, and conquered the island. In Cyprus Richard married his fiancée Berengaria of Navarre, who was accompanying him, and crowned her Queen of England. Realising how difficult it would be to maintain control of the island, Richard sold it to the Knights Templars, who handed it back, following a local uprising on the island. Richard then finally sold Cyprus to the former king of the Latin state of Jerusalem, French nobleman Guy de Lusignan, founder of the Lusignan dynasty of kings and queens in Cyprus, whose family originated from Poitier in France. Frankish rule of Cyprus, known as the Lusignan period, lasted for three centuries (1192-1489). The governing regime in Cyprus became feudal and the Catholic church was instated as the official institution of the state. In 1291, after the fall of Acre (Latin kingdom of Jerusalem) to the Mamelukes of Egypt, Cyprus remained the sole bastion of Christianity in the East, as well as the most important trading post in the Eastern Mediterranean. The granting by the Frankish kings of commerce privileges to powerful trading cities of the West, such as Venice and Genoa gave rise to conflict between the Western powers as to who would prevail over Cyprus. This had a detrimental political and economic effect on the island.

The 14th century saw great commercial and economic activity in Cyprus. The capital of the island Lefkosia (Nicosia) and the coastal city of Ammochostos (Famagusta) grew into large urban centres with considerable trading activity. During the Middle Ages, Cyprus produced and exported high quality sugar, excellent wine and other fine agricultural products. At the same time the weaving and lace industries flourished. Another growing industry was the production of glazed ceramic ware, both for local as well as for export needs.

The gothic monuments that survive from the Frankish period consist mainly of places of worship and castles that combine Byzantine and western elements. The church of Agia Sofia in Lefkosia (Nicosia), St Nicholas cathedral in Ammochostos (Famagusta) and the Abbey of Belapais are just some of the better known structures.
The last queen of Cyprus, Caterina Cornaro, wife of King James II and sister of Venetian nobleman Andreas Cornaro ceded the island to Venice in 1489, whereupon Cyprus became part of "the Most Serene Republic" of Venice. This resulted in the definitive ousting of the Genoans from the island and the prevalence of Venetian rule. Venice's main aim was to secure a firm hold of Cyprus that would allow the unimpeded movement and supply of Venetian ships in the Eastern Mediterranean.

The main agricultural products that the island exported were wheat, barley, sugar, cotton, wine and olive oil. The main cottage industry was textiles, while at the same time lace was beginning to be produced in the village of Lefkara. Most exports were shipped out of the port of Ammochostos (Famagusta). Towards the end of Venetian rule, Larnaka became the most important port of Cyprus, from where salt was exported. The port of Lemesos (Limassol) also started to develop at this time.

When the Ottomans conquered the island of Rhodes in 1522, the Venetians were alerted to the danger of losing Cyprus. Hence they built fortifying walls around Lefkosia (Nicosia) and strengthened the existing walls of Ammochostos (Famagusta), on whose sea side stood the tower of Othello, known from the Shakespeare tragedy.
The period of Ottoman rule in Cyprus began with the fall of Ammochostos (Famagusta) in 1571. The Latins were expelled from the island and a Moslem community was established in Cyprus for the first time. Privileges were given to the Orthodox church of Cyprus from the beginning of Ottoman rule, giving it not just religious authority but also political authority.

Cyprus went through hard times during Ottoman rule. The contribution of the Greek Cypriots to the Greek War of Independence in 1821 resulted in the execution of Cyprus Archbishop Kyprianos, three of his bishops and about 470 clerics and laymen.

Since the early 18th century, there took place a positive social and economic resurgence in the lives of Greek Cypriots and Greeks, alongside the parallel decline of the Ottoman Empire. The trading activities of Europeans in the coastal towns of Cyprus and the establishment of foreign consular offices in Larnaka marked the start of a change in the social fabric of the island, from agricultural and semi-feudal as it was in previous periods, to semi-urban in the coastal towns. This social change was strengthened by the close contacts of the Greeks of Cyprus with the newly independent Greek state that emerged after the Greek War of Independence. These first urbanised townsfolk began to express the first strong nationalist sentiments.
In 1878, under a secret treaty established between Great Britain and the Ottomans, Cyprus was ceded to the former. Despite early expectations of Cypriots that there would be substantial changes in their political, economic and social lives and that their desire for union of Cyprus with Greece would be fulfilled, these did not materialise. Greek Cypriot disappointment with British colonial rule together with the prevailing economic recession, led to the uprising events of October 1931. These events resulted in even harsher colonial measures being imposed by the British.

The Greeks of Cyprus continued to press on with their demand for national restitution and union with Greece but the British government continued to reject it. On 15 January 1950 a referendum on union with Greece was held, in which 95.7% of Greek Cypriots voted in favour. The referendum outcome had no effect on the British stance. On 20 October 1950 Bishop of Kition Makarios III was elected as Archbishop. The political deadlock the Greek Cypriots faced led to the waging of the national liberation anticolonial struggle of 1955-59, by the National Organisation of Cypriot Fighters (EOKA). The struggle resulted in the ending of British rule, but not to union with Greece.

The Zurich-London Agreements led to the establishment of the independent Republic of Cyprus. On 13 December 1959 Archbishop Makarios III was elected first President of the Republic and Dr Fazil Kutchuk first Vice President.
The Republic of Cyprus was proclaimed on 16 August 1960. The island became a member of the United Nations, the Commonwealth, the Council of Europe and the Non-Aligned Movement. On the basis of the Zurich-London agreements Britain maintained two sovereign military bases on the island with a total combined area of 158,4 square kilometres, consisting of Dhekelia to the east of Larnaka and Akrotiri-Episkopi near Lemesos (Limassol). Two treaties were signed as part of the Zurich-London agreements, the Treaty of Alliance and the Treaty of Guarantee. The latter gave the right to the three guarantor powers, Britain, Turkey and Greece, to take action in the event that the provisions of the Treaty were violated. Although the Cyprus constitution safeguarded the basic rights and freedoms of all its citizens, it contained community provisions that made it complex and non-workable. In 1963 the President of the Republic proposed constitutional amendments which both the Turkish Cypriot community leadership and Turkey rejected. The Turkish Cypriots withdrew from the government and proceeded to set up an illegal “Temporary Turkish Cypriot Administration”. As a result of subsequent inter-communal conflict that ensued at the beginning of 1964, a United Nations Security Council resolution established a U.N Peace Keeping Force in Cyprus.

In 1974 the military junta ruling Greece at the time staged a military coup in Cyprus aiming at the overthrow of elected President Makarios. Turkey used the coup as a pretext to invade militarily the island on 20 July 1974 and occupy 37% of the territory of the Republic of Cyprus, displacing about 200000 Greek Cypriots from the occupied northern part of the island. Despite international condemnation of Turkey and the acknowledgement of the rights of the Cypriot people drafted in various resolutions issued by the United Nations, the Security Council, the Commonwealth, the Non-Aligned Movement and other international organisations, Turkish troops still illegally occupy the northern part of Cyprus. On 1 May 2004, with its northern part still under occupation, Cyprus became a full member of the European Union. The accession act included a protocol which states that implementation of the acquis communautaire on the areas not controlled by the Cyprus government (as a result of the Turkish invasion) is suspended. This suspension will be removed as soon as the Cyprus problem is solved. Efforts and negotiations to find a just and functional solution to the Cyprus problem are continuing.
Lefkosia (Nicosia) is situated practically in the centre of Cyprus and constitutes a rich cultural hub. The history of the city dates back to the Bronze age. In antiquity and in early Christian times it was known as Ledra. It has been the capital of Cyprus since the late Byzantine period (11th century). The Lusignans transformed it into a splendid town, with royal palaces and 50 churches. Contemporary Lefkosia (Nicosia) combines the historic past with the liveliness of a modern city. The city centre, the old “Chora”, surrounded by 16th century walls, with museums, old churches and medieval buildings, maintains the leisurely atmosphere of yesteryear. Outside the walls, the modern town with its contemporary comforts pulsates to cosmopolitan rhythms. Lefkosia (Nicosia) remains the only divided capital in the world. A few kilometres into the countryside one can admire superb Byzantine churches and monasteries.

Visitors to Lefkosia (Nicosia) can get to know the town and feel its pulse through organised walks, provided free of charge every Monday, Thursday and Friday.

The Cyprus Museum in Lefkosia (Nicosia) is the main and largest archaeological museum in Cyprus. Work on the building commenced in 1908 and was completed in 1924, when Cyprus was still a British colony. Several extensions were added later, to reach its present form.

A visit through the collections of the museum provides an opportunity to experience the development of Cyprus’ civilisation, from the Neolithic age to the Early Byzantine period (7th century AD). Finds from extensive excavations all over the island enrich the museum’s collections and contribute to the development of Cyprus’ archaeology and research into the cultural heritage of the Mediterranean. The collections consist of pottery, jewellery, sculpture, coins, copper objects, and other artifacts, exhibited in chronological order in the various museum galleries. Pieces of important artistic as well as archaeological and historical value that are typical of Cypriot culture include the cross-shaped idol of the Chalcolithic period, the Early Bronze age pottery from Vouni, the Late Bronze age golden jewellery from Egkomi and the 1st century BC statue of Aphrodite of Soloi. The museum is a stop on the Aphrodite Cultural Route.
The Old City within the walls

BYZANTINE MUSEUM AND ART GALLERIES

Byzantine Museum
The Byzantine Museum contains the richest and most representative collection of Byzantine art in Cyprus. Over 200 icons dating from the 9th to the 19th century, as well as ecclesiastical vessels, robes and books are exhibited in the museum. The 6th century mosaics from the church of Panagia Kanakaria in Lythragkomi are the most impressive of all the exhibits. These mosaics were brought back to Cyprus after having been illegally exported from the occupied part of the island.

Art Galleries
The four galleries of the Cultural Centre of the Archbishop Makarios III Foundation exhibit a unique collection of representative works of Western-European art dating from the Renaissance to modern times, as well as Greek and Cypriot masterpieces.

a) The first gallery contains works of western European painters such as Nicolas Poussin, Eugene Delacroix and others.

b) The second gallery contains 18th and 19th century paintings, engravings and maps on themes from the 1821 Greek War of Independence.

c) The third gallery contains works of Greek artists from the 19th and 20th century.

d) The fourth gallery contains representative works of 20th century Cypriot artists.

AGIOS IOANNIS (ST. JOHN’S) CATHEDRAL

It was built by Archbishop Nikiforos in 1662 on the site of a 14th century Benedictine chapel dedicated to St John the Evangelist. It was turned into an Orthodox monastery in 1426 when the Benedictine Order left the island following the Mameluke raids. The Orthodox church dedicated to St John the Theologian, remained a monastery until the 18th century when Archbishop Sylvester converted it into a cathedral, establishing it as the seat of the Orthodox Archbishopric in Cyprus. It is a small single-aisled church with Franco-Byzantine architectural elements, its high external buttresses giving the impression from the outside of being a fortress. It is the only church in Lefkosia (Nicosia) in which the whole of the internal wall paintings have survived in their entirety. The four large icons on the icon screen were painted by the Cretan master, John Kornaro, in 1795 and 1797. Its 18th century wall paintings depict scenes from the Holy Bible and the discovery of the tomb of St. Barnabas at Salamis.
ARCHBISHOPRIC (NEW AND OLD)

The new Archbishopric, the seat of the Cyprus Orthodox Church, was built in 1960 in a neo-byzantine style. The Old Archbishopric, built in 1730, stands alongside it. Its ground floor houses the Ethnographic Museum of Cyprus.

ETHNOGRAPHIC MUSEUM OF CYPRUS

The Ethnographic Museum of Cyprus, housed on the ground floor of the old Archbishopric, consists of a large collection of 19th and early 20th century Cypriot folk art. It includes wood-carved objects, tapestry, embroidery, pottery, Cypriot folk costumes and material hand-woven on the loom.

NATIONAL STRUGGLE MUSEUM

The museum houses documents, photographs and relevant items of the 1955-59 national Liberation Struggle.

MUNICIPAL ARTS CENTRE

The building of the old power station, a fine example of industrial architecture, has since 1994 been the home of the Nicosia Municipal Arts Centre. Its aim is to promote fine art in Cyprus. It has a large exhibition area where it houses rare and specialist publications for art lovers. The restoration of the building was given the “Europa Nostra” award in 1994.
PANAGIA CHRYSALEITISSA CHURCH

It is believed to be the oldest Byzantine church in Lefkosia (Nicosia). It is dedicated to Panagia Chrysalinitissa and is believed to have been first built in 1450 by Queen Eleni Palaiologou.

CHRYSALEITISSA CRAFTS CENTRE

This complex of eight workshops is situated near Chysalinitissa church, the oldest Byzantine church in Lefkosia (Nicosia). The workshops nestle around a central courtyard, in the manner of a traditional inn. They consist of various units engaged in contemporary applications of traditional crafts and a coffee shop. The Crafts Centre is part of the project to restore and regenerate the old part of Lefkosia (Nicosia) within the walls.

PYLI AMMOCHOSTOU (FAMAGUSTA GATE)

Famagusta Gate is one of the three entrances into old Lefkosia (Nicosia) through the Venetian walls. The walls have a perimeter of 4.5 km, with eleven heart-shaped bastions and completely encircle the old city. The eastern gate (Porta Juliana), known nowadays as Famagusta Gate, has been restored and operates as the Nicosia Municipal Cultural Centre. It consists of a large vaulted passage and two side rooms. The internal entrance is very impressive, while the external one opens onto the moat that surrounds the walls.

THE HOUSE OF CHATZIGEORGAKIS KORNESIOS - ETHNOLOGICAL MUSEUM

This manor house is one of the most important surviving 18th century buildings in Lefkosia (Nicosia). It was once the residence of the dragoman of Cyprus, Chatzigeorgakis Kornesios, who was executed by the Ottomans in 1809. The office of Dragoman was introduced in Cyprus at the start of Ottoman rule and was abolished in 1821 with the Greek War of Independence. Dragomans acted as liaisons between the pasha and the occupied population and were the most important political figures after the pasha. In the first years of Ottoman rule the dragomans were foreigners or Greek speaking Franks and later Orthodox Greek Cypriots. Chatzigeorgakis Kornesios was the most prominent of all the dragomans of Cyprus.

The building was restored by the Department of Antiquities and today houses the Cyprus Ethnological Museum. In 1988 it was given the “Europa Nostra” award.
OMERIYE MOSQUE (EX AUGUSTINIAN CHURCH)

The mosque was formerly a 14th century Augustinian monastery dedicated to St. Mary. It was converted into a mosque in 1571 by Mustafa Pasha, the Ottoman conqueror of the island, who believed that the original church was built on the spot where the caliph Omer rested when visiting Lefkosia (Nicosia). Most of the original building was destroyed by Turkish artillery in 1570. Inscribed tombstones from the Lusignan period were used to install a new floor for the mosque. Visitors can see the remains of a late Venetian building near the eastern side of the mosque.

OMERIYE BATHS

The Omeriye Baths were built in the 16th century by Lala Mustafa as a gift to the city. The bath complex or hammam was dedicated to the Caliph Omer and the area became known as Omeriye. It has now been restored to its present state.

BAYRAKTAR MOSQUE

The mosque is situated on the Constanza bastion of the Venetian walls, on the site where a Turkish soldier planted the colours of the Ottomans on the Venetian Walls during the siege of the town in 1570.

KASTELIOTISSA MEDIEVAL HALL

This hall was part of the Lusignan palace and dates to the 13th-14th century. Kasteliotissa, with its strong gothic elements, has been restored by the Department of Antiquities. It is used today as an exhibition centre and is open to the public only when functions are held there.

CYPRUS CLASSIC MOTORCYCLE MUSEUM

The Classic Motorcycle Museum was created by motorcycle collector, Andreas Nicolaou. The 150 motorbikes of the museum date from 1914 to 1983. The exhibits include AJS Norton, Triumph and BSA motorcycles, as well as three police bikes that formed part of Archbishop Makarios’ police escort, a motorcycle belonging to EOKA hero Stylianos Lenas and one belonging to Turkish Cypriot champion Zeki Isa. The museum also houses an exhibition of photographs.
The Church of the Holy Cross, built in 1902, is situated near Pafos Gate, one of the three entrances into the town through the Venetian walls surrounding Lefkosia (Nicosia). The church does not belong to any definite style and its architectural features are austere. The cross of Jerusalem can be seen in the façade.

LAIKI GEITONIA (TRADITIONAL NEIGHBOURHOOD)

This area has seen the restoration of houses that are typical examples of traditional Cypriot urban architecture and are used today as shops, restaurants and craft centres.

The office of the Cyprus Tourism Organisation in Laiki Geitonia is the start of organised walks through the old town of Lefkosia (Nicosia).

LEVENTIS MUNICIPAL MUSEUM OF LEFKOSIA

This is the only historical museum of Lefkosia (Nicosia) that presents the social and historical development of the city, from the Chalcolithic age to the present day. Founded in 1984, it is named after its donor, the Anastasios G. Leventis Foundation, which bought and restored the building. The museum is administered by the Municipality of Lefkosia (Nicosia). The collection includes archaeological finds, traditional costumes, photographs, medieval pottery, maps, engravings, jewellery and furniture.

LEDRA STREET OBSERVATORY

The observatory on the 11th floor of the Shakolas Tower Building provides a panoramic view of the whole town of Lefkosia (Nicosia). Visitors can admire unobstructed all round views of the city and its landmarks.
Built in 1872 within the old city walls, Faneromeni church is one of the largest churches of Lefkosia (Nicosia). The marble mausoleum to the east of the church contains the relics of the bishops and priests executed by the Ottomans in 1821. Opposite the church is the school of Faneromeni, one of the most historic academic institutions in Cyprus.

Stavros tou Missirikou is a medieval Orthodox church converted into a mosque when Cyprus was taken over by the Ottomans in 1571. Originally built in the first half of the 16th century, it is a Frankish building whose architectural style is a blend of Byzantine, Gothic and Italian renaissance elements. It was named after the Frankish King of Cyprus Henry II (Monsieur Erikou), who reigned from 1285 to 1324.

Built by Archbishop Germanos II in 1695, it is an example of Franco-Byzantine style architecture. The interior of the church is rich, with an unusually wide icon-stand and silver-plated icons.

The museum presents one of the most important collections of Greek Mycenaean pottery. Due to the widespread export of this pottery style especially in the Eastern Mediterranean, such pottery was reproduced locally in other regions such as in Cyprus and in Syria. Of special significance is a unique anthropomorphic vessel. The collection is enriched by white slip pottery and base ring pottery, two typical styles of pottery from the Late Bronze age in Cyprus. The richest part of the collection consists of limestone sculptures from the 6th century BC to the Hellenistic period. The museum is linked with the Aphrodite Cultural Route.

The museum has a collection of Cyprus stamps from 1880 until today. The collection is accompanied by a display of objects related to the history of the island’s Postal Services.

The museum is located near the Faneromeni church at Phaneromenis 86-90. Tel: 22677134. Open all the year round. Monday-Saturday: 10.00-17.00. Closed during public holidays. Entrance free.

The church of St Paul was built in 1893 when Cyprus was part of the British Empire. The influence of politics on architecture is evidenced by the structural elements of the building which is reminiscent of an English parish church.

"VON WORLD PENS HALL"

The “Von World Pens Hall” is the only pen museum in Europe. Its collection includes more than 2000 pens from all known pen manufacturers. Some of the objects in the museum date back to the 15th and 16th century. In addition to pens, the collections of the museum also include Victorian era pencils, seals, inkwells and typewriters.

FILAKISMENA MNIMATA (Incarcerated Graves)

In an enclosure within the Central Prison complex rest nine young men convicted and hanged by the British Administration, during the course of the Liberation Struggle of 1955-59. They are Michail Karaolis, Andreas Dimitriou, Iacovos Patatsos, Andreas Zakos, Charilaos Michail, Stelios Mavrommatis, Andreas Panagides, Michail Koutsoftas, Evagoras Pallikarides. It is also the resting place of four other EOKA heroes who died in combat (Markos Drakos, Grigoris Afxentiou, Stylianos Lenas, Kyriakos Matsis). After Independence the area was converted into a place of veneration and aptly named “Filakisma Mnimata” (Incarcerated Graves), from a painting by Cypriot artist Pol Georgiou. To the inside right of the enclosure lie the graves of the young heroes and to the left are the cells where they were kept, as well as the noose used for the executions.

KYKKOS MONASTERY DEPENDENCY (Metochi Monis Kykkou)

The dependency of Kykkos Monastery in Lefkosia was established in 1890. It is a solitary institution, dependent on the Monastery of Kykkos.

TOMB OF MAKEDONITISSA

A military cemetery and war memorial, near the monastery of Makedonitissa. Officers and soldiers who died defending Cyprus during the Turkish invasion in 1974 are buried here.

ARCHANGELOS MICHAEL MONASTERY

The church of the monastery dates to the Byzantine period. It was rebuilt in 1636 and in 1713 it came under Kykkos Monastery. The monastery was founded by Archbishop Nikiforos, whose tomb can be seen in the narthex of the church. The icon-stand dates to 1650. The monastery has a 1785 fresco depicting the Archangel Michael. Today the monastery houses the Kykko Monastery Research Centre.

CHURCH OF SAINTS BARNABAS AND HILARION

The church is dedicated to Saints Barnabas and Hilarion. It was probably built in the 9th or 10th century and is an outstanding example of Cypriot Byzantine architecture. Next to the church lies the Turkish mosque of Peristerona, one of many visible evidences of the peaceful coexistence between Greek and Turkish Cypriots prior to the 1974 Turkish invasion.

PANAGIA CHRYSPOLIOTISSA CHURCH

Near Kato Deftera Village, 11km southwest of Nicosia

This church in the shape of a catacomb is built inside a natural cave and is dedicated to the ‘Lady of the Golden Cave’. The church possibly dates back to the early Christian period. This type of church is rare in Cyprus but common in the Near East. Sadly the decorated walls of the cave have suffered great damage and the frescoes are no longer visible. A large religious festival is held on 15 August, the day of the Dormition of the Virgin Mary.

Tamassos, rich in copper ore, was an important city-kingdom in ancient times. Excavations have brought to light the Royal Tombs, copper workshops and the Temple of Aphrodite-Astarte. Impressive archaeological finds from Tamassos are the six oversized limestone statues dating back to the 6th century BC. They are now exhibited in the Cyprus Museum in Lefkosia (Nicosia). Tamassos is linked to the Aphrodite Cultural Route.

AGIOS IRAKLEIDIOS CONVENT

Politiko village, 500m from the Royal Tombs.
Tel: 22623950

Irakleidios, the son of a pagan priest, was ordained Bishop of Tamassos by Saints Paul and Barnabas. He was martyred at the age of 60 and buried in the cave where he had lived and from where he preached the Gospel. In 400 AD a church was built over his grave. The monastery was destroyed and rebuilt several times. Today’s buildings date back to 1773 when Archbishop Chrysanthos restored the church and convent cells. The saint’s relics are kept inside the church. Today the monastery functions as a convent.

MACHAIRAS MONASTERY

40km south of Lefkosia (Nicosia) through the village of Deftera
Tel: 22359334

One of the oldest and most important monasteries in Cyprus. It was founded by two monks in 1148, when a miraculous icon of the Virgin Mary was found in a nearby cave. During Ottoman rule it was an educational centre, as were the other monasteries of Cyprus. This is the cloister monastery of Archbishop Kyprianos, who was executed by the Turks together with hundreds of other clerics and laymen on 9 July 1821. The brotherhood follows equally strict rules here as the brotherhood at Mount Athos in Greece.
Deserted at the beginning of the 19th century, the village of Fikardou has been declared an “ancient monument” and carefully restored to preserve its 18th century houses with their remarkable woodwork and folk architecture. The “House of Katsinioros” and the “House of Achilleas Dimitri”, sections of which date back to the 16th century, have been restored and constitute a vivid example of rural Cypriot architecture. These buildings house the Rural Museum. In 1987 the village received the “Europa Nostra” Award.

Every year on 15 August and on 8 September a large religious fair is held here. About 2km north of Machairas monastery lies the hide-out of Grigoris Afxentiou, hero of the 1955-59 Liberation Struggle. On 3 March 1957 British troops surrounded his hide-out and called upon Afxentiou to surrender. He refused and after 7 hours of battle the British poured petrol into the hide-out and blew it up. Afxentiou perished. Personal belongings of the hero are exhibited in a special museum.

The vestry of Machairas monastery, which is situated in the basement, has been restored and set up thanks to a donation by the A. G. Leventis Foundation. It consists of the original monks’ cells, as well as restored stables and storehouses. The vestry maintains a room where the old books and manuscripts of the monastery are kept, exhibition areas and storage rooms with icons and ecclesiastic objects.

ATHALASSA NATIONAL FOREST PARK

Athalassa park has a Visitor’s Centre that provides information about the environmental features of the park. A scale model replica of the park shows its basic natural features, vegetation and recreational facilities. Dioramas give three-dimensional representations of the area vegetation, birds, mammals and reptiles. Geological samples, fossils and related objects are exhibited in a separate room, while visuals are used to present the local fauna and flora.
The Cyprus Museum of Natural History was founded by “The Photos Photiades Charity, Scientific and Cultural Foundation”. It is the largest museum of its kind in Cyprus. Most of the museum's approximately 2500 exhibits consist of stuffed mammals, birds, fish, reptiles and insects, as well as rocks, minerals, semiprecious stones, shells and fossils.

The early industrial workshop of Agia Varvara is unique in Cyprus. It combines the traditional house with the place of work. The workshop uses equipment from the 1920s, such as a flourmill, olive press and wine press.

Monuments from all periods of Cyprus’ history can be found in the region. In the town of Dali lies the archaeological site of ancient Idalion, one of the city-kings of ancient Cyprus. The region is linked with the Aphrodite cultural route. Its strategic position, the presence of water and fertile land were factors that contributed to the area's flourishing between the 8th and 5th centuries BC. According to legend, Dali is where Adonis, Aphrodite's lover, was killed by her jealous lover Aris, the Olympian god of war.

The Byzantine church of Agioi Apostoloi is situated at Pera Chorio in the Dali region. It contains some of the most exquisite frescoes found in Cyprus, dating back to the late 12th century and considered to be some of the most beautiful examples of Comnenian art. Of interest is the church of Agios Demetrianos (13th century).

Medieval ruins can be found in the region of the village of Potamia, including those of a summer palace of the Frankish kings and queens of Cyprus and a Gothic church.
Lemesos (Limassol), the second largest city of the island, lies between two ancient city-kingdoms: Amathous to the east and Kourion to the west. The city developed after the destruction of Amathous by Richard the Lionheart in 1191. Many important antiquities, Byzantine and Frankish monuments are found in the city of Lemesos, evidence of its long history. Today Lemesos is the island’s main port, the centre of Cyprus’ wine industry and a major tourist resort. The city is also known for its lively Carnival celebrations, the annual Wine Festival and the traditional, spontaneous hospitality of its inhabitants. In the nearby mountainous regions of the district one finds beautiful wine producing villages, the cosmopolitan mountain resort of Platres and the picturesque region of Pitsilia.

Visitors to Lemesos (Limassol) can get to know the city by taking part in free organised walks held every Monday.

LEMESOS (LIMASSOL) MEDIEVAL CASTLE / MUSEUM

Lemesos (Limassol) castle was built in the 13th century on the site of an earlier Byzantine castle near the old harbour. According to archaeological sources, the castle was much larger in its original form. The Venetians strengthened its walls to ward off sea-pirates. Legend has it that Richard the Lionheart, the King of England and leader of the 3rd Crusade, married Berengaria of Navarre here in 1191. In 1570 the Ottomans conquered the castle and used it as a garrison and gaol. During British rule it functioned as a police station and briefly as a detainment place. Today the castle houses the Cyprus Medieval Museum, whose exhibits include medieval pottery, superb silver Byzantine era plates, tombstones, weapons, crosses and coins.

CAROB MUSEUM

The Carob Mill was built in 1900, at a time when carobs were a major export of Cyprus. They were used to make a wide variety of products such as photographic filmplates, medicines, sweets and chocolates. The machinery used in processing the carobs is preserved and displayed in a renovated building, blending the authentic atmosphere of the past with the sophisticated high-tech look of the present. The Carob Mill area has been divided into a complex of two distinct areas: the first area consists of the restored Carob Mill and the second houses the Evagoras Lanitis Centre, an arts and exhibitions area.

KEBIR MOSQUE (THE GREAT MOSQUE)

Kebir Mosque was built in the 16th century and is still operational today. Recent excavations to the east have revealed the architectural remains of the 10th century cathedral of Agia Ekaterini. The mosque is one of the most important places of worship for the Moslems of Lemesos (Limassol).

AGIA NAPA CHURCH

The church was built towards the end of the 19th century and early 20th century, replacing an older 18th century church. It is dedicated to the Virgin Mary. According to tradition it takes its name from an icon of the Virgin Mary, which was found in a glen (Napa in Latin means glen). Another source says that the church owes its name to a temple built in the Frankish period, dedicated to the Holy Nappe of St Berenice, known by the name of Saint Nape.

LEMESOS (LIMASSOL) DISTRICT ARCHAEOLOGICAL MUSEUM

The Lemesos (Limassol) Archaeological Museum houses a rich and notable collection of antiquities from the Neolithic age to the Roman period, originating from excavations at archaeological sites in the Lemesos (Limassol) region.

The exhibits are housed in three rooms and are divided into three main categories. The first room contains pottery from different historical periods, the middle room has coins, jewellery, lamps and a variety of copper tools and objects, while the third has sculptures, tombstones, capitals, inscriptions and other marble and limestone artifacts. Exhibits include a variety of objects related to the cult of Aphrodite, such as fertility and other votive offerings and female terracotta figurines. The museum is linked with the Aphrodite Cultural Route.

LEMESOS (LIMASSOL) MUNICIPAL ART GALLERY

The gallery contains collections of paintings of well-known contemporary Cypriot artists, among them Adamantios Diamantis, Christophoros Savva and Telemachos Kanthos.

SCULPTURE PARK

Sixteen sculptures made by local and foreign artists are exhibited in the park, the products of sculpture symposiums held from 1999-2001.

Kolossi castle is a fine example of military architecture. It was originally built in the 13th century and rebuilt in its present form in the 15th century. After the fall of Acre in 1291 it served as the Grand Commandery of the Knights of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem and in the 14th century came under the domain of the Knights Templar. During their stay in Cyprus, the Knights produced and exported a sweet wine, which became known as the “vin de Commanderie”. Today Commandaria wine is one of Cyprus’ traditional wines and one of the oldest named wines in the world, having had the same name for eight centuries. Next to the castle are the ruins of a 14th century sugar mill.

Erimi Village, on the Lemesos-Pafos road
Tel: 25873808
All the year round
Monday to Sunday: 09:00-17:00
Entrance: £2.50 adults

The Wine Museum offers a unique opportunity to learn about the history of wine production in Cyprus. The various stages of wine production and consumption, as well as the various uses of wine, are shown through different presentations. Ancient jars and canisters, medieval drinking vessels, old documents and instruments illustrate the social, economic and symbolic aspects of wine production.
Kourion was an important city-kingdom in antiquity and one of the most impressive archaeological sites in Cyprus. The magnificent Greco-Roman theatre was built in the 2nd century BC and extended in the 2nd century AD. Today the theatre has been completely restored and is used for musical and theatrical performances. Excavations have unearthed the “House of Eustolios”, originally a private villa, which during the early Christian period was turned into a public recreation centre. It consists of a complex of baths and rooms with beautiful 5th century AD mosaic floors. The early Christian basilica dates back to the 5th century AD and was probably the Cathedral of Kourion, with separate baptistery on the external northern side. The “House of Achilles” and the “House of the Gladiators” were named after their superb mosaic floors. Other parts of the town include private villas and an impressive Nymphaeum, dedicated to water nymphs. The Stadium lies 1km to the west, on the right side of the road towards Pafos and dates back to the 2nd century AD. A roof structure allows visitors to enjoy the site all year round.

Kourion stadium, with a capacity for 6000 spectators, is the only ancient stadium found in Cyprus. It dates to the 2nd century AD. According to archaeological sources, ancient pentathlon events took place here.

It offers educational programmes for schools on the history and habitat of the region. Visitors can view exhibits related to the protected Akrotiri peninsula, the geological formation of the region and can admire the view of the nearby salt lake.
Agios Nikolaos ton Gaton (St. Nicholas of the Cats) is possibly the oldest monastery in Cyprus. The monastery chapel, which dates to the 14th century, was abandoned in the 16th century and was reinstated by Orthodox nuns in the early 1980s. According to tradition, the monastery was founded by St. Helena, mother of Emperor Constantine the Great, who left a piece of wood from the Holy Cross there. During that period Cyprus experienced a severe drought, as a result of which many people fled from the cape and the area became infested by snakes. Then Constantine the Great sent a commander to Cyprus called Kalokeros, who released thousands of cats to the Cape in order to exterminate the snakes and thus save the area.

AGIOS NIKOLAOS TON GATON CONVENT
(St. Nicholas of the Cats)

On Cape Gata near Lemesos (Limassol), south east of Akrotiri Salt Lake

This is a complex of two churches. The older one, possibly dating to the 12th century, is on the east side and is a cross-in-square domed church. The second church on the west side was added in the 14th century and built in the same architectural style. The surviving mural paintings date to the 14th and 15th centuries.

KOURIS VALLEY

Kouris Valley, about 20 minutes from Lemesos (Limassol), has a number of important Byzantine monuments. They include the 12th century church of the Monastery of Panagia tis Amasgou, the church of Timios Stavros at Kouka village and the church of Archangelos at Monagri.

The vaulted church of the Monastery of Panagia tis Amasgou dates to the 12th century and has a second roof made of wood and tiles. The church has a series of wall paintings from the 12th, 14th and 16th centuries. The monastery functions nowadays as a convent.

The church of Archangelos at Monagri was built in 1740 on the foundations of an older monastery that had burned down. Of interest is its wood-carved icon-stand. The northern buildings of the monastery have been restored and turned into an art centre.

The church of Timios Stavros at Kouka possesses a superb example of Paleologian art in a 14th century wall painting.

Also worth visiting in the area is the picturesque village of Laneia, beloved village of artisans.
KRASSOCHORIA (The Wine Villages)

The area, known as the “Krassochoria” (the Wine Villages) is located north of Lemesos (Limassol), on the southern slopes of the Troodos mountain range. Traditional forms of viticulture are still kept alive in these villages. Wine production is still the main occupation for most of the inhabitants. The area villages house various local wine museums, well worth a visit. This is the area which produces the island’s renowned dry red wine. The area is best reached from the Lemesos-Pafos road, turning right after Erimi village.

Koilani village

Koilani is an attractive wine-producing village. On the outskirts of the village sits the single-aisled vaulted church of Agia Mavri dating to the 12th century, with wall paintings from the 15th century.

The Koilani Ecclesiastical Museum was created by the Holy Bishopric of Lemesos (Limassol) as a district branch of the larger Byzantine Museum being planned in the city itself. It houses a collection of icons and ecclesiastical objects from the parish. The museum occupies a two room building in the courtyard of Panagia Eleousa church. The exhibits span a period of about seven centuries and include pieces of an icon-stand from 1735, icons dating from the 13th to the 19th centuries, holy utensils and old books.

The museum of Viniculture (currently under refurbishment) is housed in a traditional village house. Viniculture equipment and items of folk art are on exhibit. In the yard, a large cauldron used for the preparation of the local beverage zivania can also be seen.

Omodos

The wine producing village of Omodos, built on the Troodos hillsides amidst expanses of vines, with its narrow cobbled streets and majestic monastery in the village square, is one of the most picturesque villages in Cyprus.

Omodos was once the property of Sir John de Brie, Prince of Galilee, as was the Monastery of Stavros (Holy Cross), in the centre of the village. The monastery contains old icons, excellent wood carvings and other ecclesiastical objects of interest, as well as a small museum of the national Liberation Struggle of 1955-59. An old wine-press known as Linos is a short distance from the Monastery and is open to visitors.
Nestling in the heart of the Troodos mountains amidst green and fragrant pines is yet another picturesque village, that of Foini. According to tradition, the village was named after a Frankish lord, Juan de Fejniu or Feniu, while another says its name originates from the Greek word for palm tree “foinikas”. The village is renowned for its pottery, for the manufacture of traditional furniture and for the local “loukoumi” (delight).

The Pylavakion, a private museum of folk art, displays examples of local pottery, traditional agricultural tools and kitchen utensils.

Vasa is one of the most important wine producing villages of the region with over 40% of its agricultural land being allocated to viticulture. Some of the best red wines of the island are produced here. It is a picturesque village with cobbled streets and traditional architecture.

The ecclesiastical museum of Vasa houses important icons and religious objects.

To arrange a visit one has to contact the village priest.

Arsos is one of the largest wine producing villages of Cyprus. There are two versions as to where it derives its name: one suggests it comes from the Holy Alsos (grove) of the goddess Aphrodite, where the village is built, the other that it was one of the four towns founded by Ptolemy Philadelphos in honour of Arsinoe. It has been associated with wine production since ancient times. Nowadays most inhabitants still make their own wine, while the village womenfolk have a reputation for the special dishes they prepare using wine. The Folk Art Museum of Arsos is housed in a traditional house. Its exhibits present traditional village way of life.

The village of Fasoula dates back to the Middle Ages and is depicted on old maps of Cyprus with the name Fasula or Pasula. The most likely origin of the name is that it comes from the Frankish word “Fasoula” meaning scythe, the tool for harvesting. The Agricultural Museum is in a traditional house and contains agricultural tools, such as a plough, yoke, scythe and earthenware jars for everyday use or for storing wine or olive oil.

Amathous is one of the ancient city-kings of Cyprus where, according to mythology, Greek hero Theseus left the pregnant Ariadne to be attended by local women. Amathous was an important site of worship of the goddess Aphrodite-Astarte. Archaeological finds originate from several tombs, one of which was found in the front entrance of the present Amathus hotel, others at the Acropolis and the lower section of the town, and in five early Christian basilicas. The finds date from the Archaic to the Roman and Christian periods. A pair of enormous stone vases, the largest ever discovered, were found here, one of which is now at the Louvre Museum in Paris. The site is also linked to the Aphrodite Cultural Route.

AGIA CHRISTINA CHURCH – GERMASOGEIA VILLAGE

To arrange a visit call Germasogeia Municipality:
Tel: 25879898

Situated in the centre of Germasogeia village, the church of Agia Christina was built in the 12th century and was restored in 1996. During the restoration work 14th and 15th century wall paintings were uncovered under the plaster and were restored. The small church which also houses an ecclesiastic museum has a level roof, the result of subsequent structural interventions.

CHURCH OF PANAGIA IAMATIKI - ARAKAPAS VILLAGE

The church of Panagia Iamatiki is situated on the outskirts of the village of Arakapas. It is a three-aisled wooden roofed church and contains sophisticated wall paintings of the early 16th century that are among the most important surviving examples in Cyprus of the Italo-Byzantine style of art. An extraordinary leather icon of the Virgin (in the nearby new church) is believed to have special curative powers.

AGIOS GEORGIOS ALAMANOS CONVENT

Originally founded as a monastery in the 12th century, today it functions as a convent. The nuns, besides performing their religious duties, spend their time with icon painting, cultivation of flowers and herbs and in the production of honey.
Larnaka may pride itself for its contribution to the island’s rich cultural heritage. Built on the site where ancient Kition once stood, it is the successor of one of the ancient city-kingdoms of Cyprus and the seat of Christianity from its earliest years. Kition was the birthplace of Zeno, the Greek philosopher, who founded the Stoic school of thought, and the second home of Jesus’ friend, Lazarus. The Achaean Greeks settled in the town in the 13th century BC, while Phoenicians moved here from the 9th century BC. In the 18th century AD it became Cyprus’ commercial centre, the place where all European consuls established their missions. The new city, Larnaka, has a charm of its own. In the winter months thousands of flamingoes, wild swans and other migrating birds make their annual stopover at the nearby salt lake. The district of Larnaka has many interesting places to visit, particularly ancient, Byzantine and Moslem monuments, such as the renowned Hala Sultan Tekkesi.

Larnaka Municipality offers free walks through the old city, so that visitors can get to know its character and atmosphere. The walks start every Wednesday at 10:00 am from the CTO Information Office, Tel: 24654322 and every Friday at 10:00 a.m. from Larnaka Fort, Tel: 24304576.
PLACES OF INTEREST

KITION ARCHAEOLOGICAL SITE

The architectural ruins of the ancient city-kingdom of Kition dating to the 13th century BC were found here. Excavations have revealed cyclopean walls made of giant blocks of stone and a complex of five temples. Nearby lay the foundations of the ancient port of Kition, an important commercial centre in ancient Cyprus. Of interest are the drawings of ships etched into the walls of buildings. The site is a stop on the Aphrodite Cultural Route.

THE PIERIDES FOUNDATION ARCHAEOLOGICAL MUSEUM

The Pierides Museum is the oldest private museum in Cyprus. It is housed in the ancestral Pierides family home, a colonial style building built in 1815. The museum’s comprehensive collection was assembled by the Pierides family and includes some of the most representative items of the island’s civilisation. It charts its economic, social and cultural development over thousands of years. The objects on display dating from 4000 BC to the 15th century AD are an important testimony to a centuries old civilisation that flourished in Cyprus. Prized items in the collection are the red polished ware from the Early Bronze age, Roman glassware and medieval ceramic dishes. The museum is a stop on the Aphrodite Cultural Route.

Five old British colonial-style warehouses, part of the old Larnaka Customs houses have been renovated and now make up the city’s Municipal Cultural Centre. The Centre houses the Municipal Galleries, the Pierides-Tornaritis Palaeontology Museum and the Municipal Historical Archives-Museum of Larnaka.

The galleries display works of art by local artists.

The Pierides-Tornaritis Museum of Palaeontology is the only museum of its kind in Cyprus. It houses a collection of fossil life covering 500 million years. Among the rare exhibits from Cyprus are bones from pygmy elephants and hippopotami, which became extinct on the island at around 10000 BC.

The Municipal Historical Archives – Museum of Larnaka is housed in the restored residence and offices of the first colonial Port Master of Larnaka, built in 1881. It is situated next to the warehouses. The Museum of Larnaka is on the ground floor with exhibits on the history of the town of Larnaka. A large collection of coins from the city kingdom of Kition of the late 6th century and photographs of the city from 1850 onwards, are among the most interesting exhibits. The Municipal Historical Archives which consist of rare books, documents and articles are situated on the second floor and are accessible only to researchers.

The bust of Athenian general Kimon, who led 200 triremes in 450 BC to liberate Cyprus from Persian rule can be seen on the palm lined seaside promenade “Foinikoudes”. He perished during the siege of Kiton.

The marble bust of Zenon of Kiton at the city centre honours the philosopher, who was born in ancient Kiton, today’s city of Larnaka and who founded the famous Stoic School of Thought in Athens in the 4th century BC.
The magnificent 9th century stone church of Agios Lazaros was built by Byzantine Emperor Leo VI in the 9th century and restored in the 17th century. The church is one of the most remarkable examples of Byzantine architecture in Cyprus. Saint Lazarus came to Cyprus after being resurrected by Jesus, was ordained as Bishop of Kition by the Apostles Barnabas and Paul and lived here for 30 years. His tomb can be seen under the sanctuary. The icon-stand is a superb example of baroque woodcarving. Eight days before Easter a procession is held during which St. Lazarus’ icon is carried through the streets of Larnaka. Next to the church is the Ecclesiastical Museum.

Originally built during the Middle Ages, the Fort took its present form during Ottoman rule. After the end of the Ottoman rule in Cyprus, the British converted it into a prison during the first years of their rule. Today the Fort houses the District Medieval Museum, whose collection covers 15 centuries of history, from early Christian period to the 19th century. The open-air courtyard is used in the summer for functions by the Larnaka Municipality. Near the Fort is Tusla Mosque, which was originally a medieval three-aisled church.

The Zachouri Mosque lies between the Kebir (Buyuk) Mosque and the Church of Agios Lazaros on Nicolaou Roussou street. It was built in the middle of the 19th century and is an important muslim religious centre.

ZACHOURI MOSQUE

The Kebir (Buyuk) mosque is probably the first Ottoman mosque in Cyprus. It was originally a catholic church dedicated to St. Catherine in the 13th-14th century, before being converted into a mosque. The oldest reference of its existence is found in a 1747 document of Bekir Pasha, creator of the Larnaka aqueduct, where it is specified that a public fountain there should receive water from his aqueduct. This public fountain still survives outside the mosque today.

KEBIR (BUYUK) MOSQUE

The oldest reference of its existence is found in a 1747 document of Bekir Pasha, creator of the Larnaka aqueduct, where it is specified that a public fountain there should receive water from his aqueduct. This public fountain still survives outside the mosque today.
The museum displays large collections of local reptiles, rare insects, birds, animals, as well as fossils and marine life species from Cyprus and neighbouring countries. Of particular interest are the collections of insects and plants.

Tusla Mosque

Situated in the old part of town, behind the ruins of ancient Kition, Tusla Mosque is one of the oldest mosques in Larnaka. Its history goes back to Byzantine times. The mosque was originally a Byzantine orthodox church, as can be seen by the wall paintings in the building. In the 12th or 13th century it became the Catholic Church of the Holy Cross and was turned into a mosque after the Ottoman occupation of 1571. The minaret is built on the foundations of the original bell tower. Opposite this mosque is a Venetian period public water fountain. According to historical sources the Venetian governor’s building was situated nearby.

Terra Santa Catholic Church

Terra Santa is the church of the Latin community of Larnaka. Francisican monk Callixte Martel founded the church and the convent in 1596, mainly to house Latin pilgrims visiting the Holy Land. In 1724 a larger church and convent replaced the original buildings, which in turn were demolished in 1842 to be replaced by the present church structures. The architectural style of the convent combines Renaissance and baroque characteristics. It is also known as Santa Maria delle Grazie.

Agios Georgios Makris Chapel

This stone-built chapel of Agios Georgios dates back to the 13th century. It is built on a hill overlooking the salt lake.

Kamaraes Aqueduct

This beautiful 18th century aqueduct consisting of a series of arches gave the area its name. It was built in 1746 by the Turkish governor of Larnaka, Bekir Pasha, who funded it out of his own sources to carry water to Larnaka from a source about 6 miles away. The aqueduct was abandoned in 1939, its function replaced by modern pipes.

LARNACA SALT LAKE

Larnaka salt lake is one of the most important habitats in Europe for water fowl. Scores of flamingos, wild ducks and other water or shore fowl find refuge here in winter on their migratory journeys. Archaeological finds show that the salt lake area and that of the nearby mosque has been inhabited since the Neolithic age. In prehistoric times the salt lake was a harbour that served the town, unearthed here near where the Hala Sultan Tekkesi mosque stands today. The town was one of the large urban and commercial centres of Cyprus in the Late Bronze age (1650-1050 BC). When the town was abandoned, the estuary silted up, the natural harbour was destroyed and the salt lake was formed.

Salt was a valuable product of the lake, commercially exploited for many centuries. A nature trail has been created along the banks of the lake connecting the area with the Aphrodite Cultural Route.

HALA SULTAN TEKKESI MOSQUE

The mosque was built in 648 AD, on the spot where Umm Haram died when she fell off her mule, during one of the first Arab raids on the island. According to tradition Umm Haram was related to the Prophet Mohammed. Grand Chalif Moavia, who was taking part in the expedition, immediately ordered the construction of a mosque on the spot. It is now one of the most important holy places of worship for Muslims, ranked immediately after Mecca, Medina in Saudi Arabia and Al Aksha in Jerusalem. The mosque was first renovated in 1816 and more recently in 2002 by UNOPS.

ANGELOKTISTI CHURCH

This 11th century Byzantine church was erected over the ruins of an Early Christian basilica. The original apse of the basilica has survived together with one of the finest pieces of Byzantine art, a rare 6th century mosaic of Virgin and Child between the two archangels Michael and Gabriel. It is a rare work of art, equaling the mosaics of Ravenna-Italy. Only in Cyprus and in Mount Sinai have mosaics from that period been found. Similar mosaics are those from the church of Panagia Kanakaria in the occupied village of Lythragkomi, now on display in the Byzantine museum in Lefkosia (Nicosia).
AGIOS GEORGIOS ARPERAS CHURCH

The church of Agios Georgios Arperas is situated about 2km from the village of Tersefanou, where once stood the medieval village of Arpera. The church was built by the dragoman Christofakis Konstantinou in 1745 and has a fresco depicting himself and his family as founders. The church contains many icons signed by the painter Ioannikios.

KOSTAS ARGYROU MUSEUM

The museum displays the work of local self-taught sculptor Kostas Argyrou, who began sculpting at a late age. His work is among the most important of contemporary Cypriot artists.

CHOIROKOITIA ARCHAEOLOGICAL SITE

The archaeological site of Choirokoitia has been a listed UNESCO World Heritage Site since 1998. It is a well preserved settlement from the Neolithic age. Remains from all phases of the Neolithic age are evident in the settlement, providing an insight of living conditions in the region during prehistoric times. Five characteristic cylindrical shaped dwellings have been reconstructed near the settlement, using the same construction methods and materials used in Neolithic times. They are fitted with replicas of household objects found inside the originals, thus providing a vivid representation of how they appeared in antiquity. The vegetation around the dwellings consists of plant species and native trees that have grown in Cyprus since Neolithic times.

KALAVASOS - TENTA ARCHAEOLOGICAL SITE

The Neolithic age settlement of Tenta is situated a short distance from Kalavasos village. It dates to 7000 BC. The settlement is covered by a characteristic cone-shaped roof, which forms a contemporary architectural intervention in the landscape.
Lefkara is a picturesque village known for its lace, the famous “lefkaritika” lace, and for its silverware. Legend has it that Leonardo da Vinci himself came here and bought an altar cloth of the traditional lace, which he donated to the cathedral of Milan. The village maintains its traditional architecture with its picturesque stone houses. In the village one can visit the Museum of Folk Art Embroidery & Silversmithing, the Wax Museum, the church of the Holy Cross and the chapel of the Archangel Michael.

The church of the Holy Cross is situated in Pano (upper) Lefkara. It has a beautiful 18th century icon-stand and a unique silver 13th century cross.

The church the Archangel Michael, in Kato (lower) Lefkara, is a single-aisled domed church with wall paintings dating from the 12th and 15th centuries.

The Byzantine church of Agios Effimianos is situated in the occupied village of Lysi. Its wall paintings date back to the 14th century. After the Turkish invasion they were removed from the church, smuggled and sold abroad. They were traced in Munich. The Cyprus government and the Menil Foundation (USA) bought them back and agreed that they be exhibited in Houston for 15 years, prior to them being returned to the island. The Lysi villagers built this new church along the lines of the old one. Replicas of the famous wall paintings from the dome and apse are kept in its basement.

AGIOS EFFIMIANOS CHURCH

The chapel was built in 1421 by the Lusignan King Janus, who is depicted in a wall painting together with his wife, Charlotte de Bourbon, on the eastern facade.

Kellia Village

Stavrovouni Monastery is perched on a rocky peak 750m above sea level. Legend has it that it was founded in the 4th century by Saint Helena, a mother of Emperor Constantine the Great, who left a relic of the Holy Cross at the monastery. The monks have strict rules like those at Mount Athos in Greece. Women may not enter the monastery. An impressive ceremony and festival is held here on 14 September, the day of the Raising of the Holy Cross. The monastery of Agia Varvara on the foothills of Stavrovouni is accessible to all visitors. The monks here are known for their iconography skills.

STAVROVOUNI MONASTERY

The convent dates to the 15th century. It is a mixture of Byzantine and Gothic styles. On the north and south walls are two large paintings of Agios Georgios and Agios Minas dated 1757. The nuns here, in addition to their religious duties, practise icon-painting.

AGIOS MINAS CONVENT

The convent is open for group visits from Monday to Friday.

AGIOS ANTONIOS CHURCH

The Byzantine church of Agios Antonios is situated in the occupied village of Lysi. Its wall paintings date back to the 14th century. After the Turkish invasion they were removed from the church, smuggled and sold abroad. They were traced in Munich. The chapel was built in 1421 by the Lusignan King Janus, who is depicted in a wall painting together with his wife, Charlotte de Bourbon, on the eastern facade.

AGIOS ANTONIOS CHURCH

One of the most important Byzantine churches of Cyprus, possibly dating back to the 9th century. It is a three-aisled vaulted basilica which once had a dome. It contains significant wall paintings from the 9th, 11th and 13th centuries.
The entire town of Pafos is a listed UNESCO World Heritage Site. Pafos was the capital of Cyprus for a long period of time in antiquity. Today it is a charming town in the west of Cyprus. Numerous archaeological sites can be seen from the centre of the modern town down to its picturesque harbour, as well as all along the coast. It is out of the seas of Pafos that Aphrodite, Greek Olympian goddess of Love and Beauty is said to have risen, and it was in Pafos that the worship of the goddess flourished. The charm of the goddess can still be felt throughout the area. The Pafos region is surrounded by a beautiful coastline. Inland and in the mountainous regions lay superb monasteries and tranquil villages, where old traditions and customs have been kept alive since time immemorial.

“LOUTRA” - OTTOMAN HAMMAM (BATHS)

The Ottoman baths operated up until the 1950s. They consist of a stone vaulted building with three areas: a reception area, an intermediate area and the main baths. The building has now been restored and is used as the Pafos Municipality cultural centre.

AGIA SOLOMONI CHRISTIAN CATACOMB

A small underground complex of chamber tombs from the Hellenistic period, which has been called the Chapel of the Seven Sleepers, or the Seven Maccabees, to which almost every medieval pilgrim paid a visit. The complex was first used as a Christian catacomb in the 2nd century and may have served as a Jewish synagogue before that. It has 12th century frescoes and among the graffiti cut into the plaster are the names of 13th century Crusaders. A “sacred” tree grows above which, according to tradition, is believed to cure whoever hangs a personal votive offering on its branches.

MEDIEVAL FORT OF PAFOS

Originally a Byzantine fort built to protect the harbour, the fort was rebuilt by the Lusignans in the 13th century, but then dismantled by the Venetians. It was rebuilt by the Ottomans in the 16th century when they conquered the island.

KATO PAFOS ARCHAEOLOGICAL PARK

The inclusion of the Kato Pafos archaeological site in the UNESCO World Heritage Sites list in 1980 was the starting point for the creation of a General Plan whose aim would be primarily to protect and maintain the archaeological remains, as well as to promote them and provide comprehensive information to visitors. Kato Pafos archaeological Park includes sites and monuments from prehistoric times to the Middle Ages, while most remains date to the Roman period. The marvellous mosaic floors of four Roman villas form the impressive epicentre of the finds. The complex includes other important monuments, such as the Asklepion, the Odeion, the Agora, the “Saranta Kolones” (Forty Columns) Fortress, the “Limeniotissa” Ruins of early Christian Basilica and the “Tombs of the Kings”.
YEARS OF HISTORY AND CIVILISATION

House of Dionysos, House of Theseus, House of Aion.

The mosaic floors of these Houses, date from the 2nd to the 5th century AD. The first house was discovered accidentally by a farmer in 1962. The villas belonged to noblemen and the mosaics are considered among the finest in the Eastern Mediterranean. They depict scenes from Greek mythology and are considered masterpieces of mosaic art. Some of the mosaics at the House of Dionysos depict the god of wine, while that of Theseus depicts the classical Greek mythology hero brandishing a club against the Minotaur. The mosaics are a stop on the Aphrodite Cultural Route.

2. Pafos Odeion

   Kato Pafos, near the harbour

   The Pafos Odeion is a small 2nd century AD odeon built entirely of well-hewn limestone blocks. It is now used regularly for musical and theatrical performances. Nearby are the remains of the ancient city walls, the Asklepeion, a building dedicated to Asklepios, god of medicine, and the Roman Agora.

3. Saranta Kolones (Forty Columns) Fortress

   Kato Pafos, near the harbour

   This Frankish castle was built by the Lusignans in the early 13th century on the site of a previous Byzantine castle and was destroyed by an earthquake in 1222.

4. “Limeniotissa” Ruins of Early Christian Basilica

   Kato Pafos, near the harbour

   The basilica dates to the Early Christian period possibly to the beginning of the 5th century. It originally comprised three aisles divided by two rows of marble columns, a single apse, a narthex and atrium. The floors were paved with brilliantly coloured mosaics in geometric patterns. The basilica was destroyed during the Arab raids of the 7th century and a smaller version rebuilt in the 10th century. It was finally destroyed by an earthquake in 1159.

   The “Tombs of the Kings” are one of the major archaeological attractions of Pafos. These monumental underground tombs carved out of solid rock date back to the 3rd century BC and some are decorated with Doric pillars. High ranking officials rather than Kings were buried here, but the magnificence of the tombs gave the locality its grand name.
The church was built in the 13th century over the ruins of the largest Early Byzantine basilica on the island. St. Paul’s Pillar is situated in the church courtyard, where according to legend the Apostle was flogged before converting the then Roman governor Sergius Paulus to Christianity.

According to popular belief, the church was named thus, meaning “veiled by God”, because God sent down a fog cloud to protect the original church during the Arab raids. The new church was built in 1923.

Greater Pafos District Area

AGIOS NEOYTOS MONASTERY

Founded around 1200 by Cypriot hermit and writer Neofytos. The ‘Enkleistra’, a cave that the hermit carved out of the mountains, is covered with some of the finest examples of Byzantine wall painting that date to the 12th and 15th centuries. The monastery has a noteworthy ecclesiastical museum. The monastery church contains some of the finest post Byzantine icons dating to the 16th century.

Church of Panagia Chryseleousa

A combination of two churches, the eastern part of which was built in the 12th century, possibly on the ruins of an early Christian basilica, as a cruciform church with a dome. An extension to the west was built later in the 13th century with the addition of a new cruciform with a dome. Rare 12th, 13th, 15th and 16th century wall paintings survive in the church.
LEMPA VILLAGE

Excavations in the village of Lempa have brought to light an important settlement of the Chalcolithic age. Near the site, replicas of five houses from this period have been reconstructed using the same materials and the same building methods as used in Chalcolithic times (3900-2500 BC). The Chalcolithic settlement site is a stop on the Aphrodite Cultural Route.

CHLORAKAS VILLAGE

The Agios Georgios boat was used to import ammunition to be used in the Liberation Struggle 1955-59. It is displayed in a specially created shelter by the coast of Chlorakas. Nearby lays the church of Agios Georgios.

MUSEUM OF THE MYCENAEAN COLONISATION OF CYPRUS

The archaeological site is a small settlement dating to the 12th century BC, the end of the Late Bronze age. According to archeologists, the settlement has been termed a “colony” of the first Achaean (Mycenaean) Greeks who migrated to Cyprus at around 1200 BC, after the fall of the Mycenaean Kingdoms in mainland Greece. This small museum with its unusual architecture was designed by Andrea Bruno, a prominent architect, Professor at the University of Turin. The museum depicts the colonisation of the island by the Greeks.

AGIOS GEORGIOS BASILICAS - "PEGEIA FOUNTAINS"

Approximately 4.5km from the village of Pegeia, near the fishing shelter, lay the ruins of two early Christian basilicas with very interesting floor mosaics depicting animals. This must have been the site of an important early Christian settlement. Nearby are rock-hewn tombs of the Roman period. The picturesque “Pegeia fountains” of which many folk songs have been sung, can be seen in the pretty cobbled square of the village.
The area near the town of Polis and the Akamas peninsula rising to about 600m above sea level is known as the Laona region. It includes picturesque villages such as Ineia, Drouseia, Kathikas, Pano and Kato Akourdalaia, all with panoramic views across the area.

Drouseia is one of the most charming villages in Cyprus. The museum has examples of old and modern weaving and knitwear.

Like Drouseia, Ineia has spectacular views over the Akamas peninsula and is perfect for walks in the countryside. The local museum houses a collection of basketry.

The local museum has examples of local folk art and crafts.

The Laona/Akamas Information Centre is housed in the renovated school house, in the village centre.

4. Kathikas village - Laona/Akamas Information Centre
The town of Polis is the location where once stood the ancient city-kingdom of Marion, an important commercial centre in the Classical and Hellenistic periods, with close ties with Athens. During the Hellenistic-Roman period, Marion was renamed Arsinoe. Polis has become a popular seaside resort with a noteworthy traditional centre that maintains its beauty and many of its traditional buildings.

The museum consists of an interesting collection of antiquities discovered in the region where once stood the ancient city-kingdom of Marion-Arsinoe. The museum is on the Aphrodite Cultural Route.

This is a 16th century vaulted church in the middle of Polis with frescoes of the same period. During the Ottoman period this church was turned into a mosque. A northern annex was added to it and the frescoes covered up. These have recently been uncovered. Other churches in the region include the 16th century church of Agia Aikaterini in the village of Kritou Tera, as well as the 15th century church of Panagia Horteni in Pelathousa village.

Akamas region
Near Polis,
48km north of Pafos

The northwestern peninsula of Cyprus, known as Akamas, is a wild uninhabited region with spectacular landscapes and beaches, due to be designated a National Park. The area is named after Akamantas, an Athenian warrior and son of Theseus, who arrived here after the Trojan War. It is a unique area of biodiversity, habitats and ecosystems. Almost all the geological formations of Cyprus are met here, from narrow deep valleys, caves and islets to gorges, and there are over 500 different types of plants. The nature trails that cross the peninsula pass through unspoiled areas of extreme physical beauty. The area is ideal for hiking, cycling, diving and swimming in crystal clear waters.

The “Baths of Aphrodite” is an area in the Akamas between Polis and Cape Arnaouti. It derived its name from a small grotto shaded by an old fig tree, in the waters of which, legend has it, the goddess Aphrodite used to bathe. According to mythology, this is where she met her lover Adonis. The site is on the Aphrodite Cultural Route.

September-April: 10:00-12:30 and 13.30-16:00 (daily)

Set in beautiful surroundings, the Monastery of Chrysorogiatissa is dedicated to ‘Our Lady of the Golden Pomegranate’. It was founded in 1152 by monk Ignatios who found a miraculous icon of the Virgin Mary off the shore of Pafos. Legend has it that it was thrown into the sea in Asia Minor during the iconoclastic period and drifted by the waves to Pafos.

The present building dates to 1770. An impressive religious ceremony is held here on 15 August, on the occasion of Mother’s of God Dormition Day. The monastery Icon Depository includes an important collection of icons, religious objects and artifacts. The monastery’s old winery produces some of the best vintage wines on the island.

AGIA MONI MONASTERY

Agia Moni Monastery is linked to the very origins of monasticism in Cyprus. According to tradition, the monastery was founded around 300 AD by Agios Nicolas and Agios Eutykhios, as a place of prayer and contemplation. A sacred relic which had been given to Agios Nicolas and a piece of the cloak of the Virgin Mary were kept at the monastery until 1754.

CHOULOU VILLAGE

Choulou lies 22km to the north east of Pafos. During the Middle Ages it was a well known feudal village, associated with the popular Cypriot folk song, ‘Arodafnousa’. Significant churches in the village are the Church of the Panagia Pantanassa with 16th century frescoes, the Byzantine chapel of Agios Georgios and the 12th century chapel of Agios Theodoros.

PANAGIA TOU SINTI MONASTERY

An abandoned monastery on the banks of the Xeros river. The central nave of the monastery, dating to the 16th century is in good condition and is considered one of the most important buildings of the Venetian period. In 1997 it received the “Europa Nostra” award for restoration and conservation.
The name Geroskipou derives from the classical Greek “Hieros Kipos” meaning “Sacred garden”. It is believed that in ancient times it used to be an extensive area of beautiful gardens, dedicated to the goddess Aphrodite. Today the gardens have been replaced by the modern village renowned for its “Cyprus delights” sweets. Geroskipou is a stop on the Aphrodite Cultural Route.

1. Folk Art Museum

The museum is housed in the 18th century “house of Hadjismith”. It carries a rich collection of Cypriot folk art and crafts consisting of pottery, kilims and scarves, as well as tools used in silk production. The building is named after Sir Sidney Smith, a British Admiral, who appointed the owner of the house, Andreas Zimboulaki, as British consul. Thus the house came to be referred to as “the house of Hadjismith”.

Sanctuary of Aphrodite and Palaipafos Museum

Palaipafos was one of the most celebrated pilgrimage centres of the classical Greek world and one of the city-kingdoms of Cyprus in antiquity. Here lie the ruins of the famous sanctuary of Aphrodite, whose remains date back to the 12th century BC. The sanctuary remained a place of worship until the 3rd or 4th century AD. The museum is housed in a nearby Lusignan manor. It houses impressive finds from the region, dating from the Chalcolithic age to the Middle Ages. It portrays how the cult of the goddess of fertility developed into the cult of Aphrodite. Excavations are continuing at the sanctuary, as well as in and around the ruins of the town and the necropolis. The sanctuary is a stop on the Aphrodite Cultural route.

Cyprus is renowned as the island of Aphrodite, the goddess of love and beauty. The “Petra tou Romiou” area is one of the most beautiful coastlines in Cyprus, where, according to mythology, Aphrodite rose from the waves. The Greek name, “Petra tou Romiou” ("the Rock of the Greek") is associated with the legendary Byzantine hero, Digenis Akritas, who, according to legend, kept the marauding Saracen Arabs (7th-10th centuries) at bay with his amazing strength. With one hand he was said to have grabbed hold of the Kyreneia mountain range thereby forming “Pentadaktylos”, the Five Finger mountain, while with the other hand he heaved a huge rock and tossed it into the sea at the Saracens who were trying to land. The rock still remains and thus gave the region its name. The site is a stop on the Aphrodite Cultural route.
Golden sandy beaches abound on the eastern coast of Cyprus, in the free part of the Ammochostos (Famagusta) area. The popular holiday resorts of Agia Napa and Paralimni-Protaras are a true paradise for lovers of the sea, watersports and night life. But there is more to the area. Inland one can also admire a number of Byzantine and Frankish monuments and museums. The magical landscape was an inspiration to Greek Nobel poet laureate, George Seferis. Sights worth seeing include the medieval monastery at the centre of Agia Napa, the hundreds of windmills in the sprawling fields and the many Byzantine churches in the Paralimni-Protaras region and in surrounding villages.

The region is the main potato-producing area on the island and is known as Kokkinochoria, meaning “Red Soil villages”, thanks to the fertile red earth in which they are grown.

The villages of this area are equally renowned for their folk poets and traditional song performers, who are regarded as the most inspired on the island.

PLACES OF INTEREST

AGIA NAPA

1. Agia Napa Monastery
This imposing medieval monastery, dedicated to “Our Lady of the Forests”, stands in the middle of Agia Napa surrounded by a high wall enclosure. Its 16th century church is partially underground, carved into the rock. The guest house to the east of the church belongs to the World Council of Churches. An ancient sycamore tree, believed to be over 600 years old, grows in front of the south gate.

2. “Thalassa” Marine Museum
The “Thalassa” Marine Museum is housed in a modern multi-purpose building. Its theme is the sea and the marine heritage of Cyprus from prehistoric times to the present. Pride of place among the exhibits is a life-size functioning replica of a 4th century BC Greek trading vessel, the original of which was found off the coast of Keryneia.

The museum’s collections include embalmed and preserved sea organisms, archaeological artefacts, fish fossils, sea turtles, as well as contemporary sea shells and other organisms of the Mediterranean.

CAPE GKREKO NATIONAL PARK

It is believed that a temple dedicated to Aphrodite once existed in the Cape Gkreko area. Cape Gkreko National Park is an area of unique natural beauty, where one can admire magnificent cliff formations. Many of the 36 different orchid species growing on the island are found here, as well as crocuses and irises. The local nature trail links the area with the Aphrodite Cultural Route.

PARALIMNI

After the city of Ammochostos (Famagusta) was occupied by Turkish troops in 1974, this small township became the temporary administrative centre of the district. It has an interesting two-aisled church dedicated to the Virgin Mary, which is decorated with unusual 18th century porcelain plates. Sections of the church that date back to the 13th century house a small ecclesiastical museum. There are a number of other interesting churches in the wider Paralimni area.
Deryneia has three important churches - the small medieval domed church of Agios Georgios dating to the 17th century, the 15th century chapel of Agia Marina, and a church dedicated to the Virgin Mary (Panagia) which has two exquisite 17th century icons. From the hill to the north of the village one can view the occupied city of Ammochostos (Famagusta), once the most popular holiday resort in Cyprus.

1. Deryneia Folk Art Museum
Deryneia Folk Art Museum is situated in a beautiful old house, which serves as a charming venue for civil marriages. Its collection consists of folk art items from past centuries.

2. Cultural Centre of Occupied Ammochostos (Famagusta)
The Cultural Centre hosts regular presentations and briefings with regard to the Cyprus problem. Binoculars are available for viewing the occupied city of Ammochostos (Famagusta). There is also a small photographic exhibition of the occupied city, as well as a handicraft centre selling traditional items.

Sotira was an important village in Byzantine times. There are five interesting Byzantine churches in the village, particularly as regards their architecture and beautiful wall structure. The church of Agios Mamas is situated on the eastern side of the village and was built in the early 16th century. Most of its wall paintings also date to the 16th century. About one kilometre to the west stands the cruciform church of Panagia Chordakiotissa, the church of Agios Georgios Hortakion and the church of Agios Theodoros (of which only the narthex survives). In the centre of the village stands the church of the Transfiguration of the Saviour (13th -16th century) with excellent examples of post-Comnenian art (early 13th century).

Ecclesiastical Museum
An old chapel has been turned into a museum to house a small but important collection of ecclesiastic artefacts and icons, such as a 15th century icon of Christ.
FRENAROS VILLAGE

The village of Frenaros has a number of small Byzantine churches, such as the churches of the Archangelos Michael and of Agios Andronikos, which date to the 12th century. Also of interest is the 15th century church of Agia Marina, containing some interesting frescoes painted by different artists only a few of which survive today.

AVGOROU VILLAGE

Avgorou has many Byzantine and post Byzantine churches. The main church of the village is dedicated to Saints Peter and Paul. Inside the church are two double-sided 17th century icons, one of St. George and the other featuring St. John the Baptist. There is also an icon of Christ dating to 1629. Other churches include the chapel of Agios Georgios and the church of Agios Georgios Terrachotis.

The Avgorou Ethnographic Museum is situated in an old two-storey house. Its exhibits depict the way of life in the area of bygone generations.

LIOPETRI VILLAGE

In the village of Liopetri is a 16th century church dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and a 15th century church of Agios Andronikos with an octagonal dome and the remains of murals which can still be distinguished in the apse. Liopetri has an ongoing tradition for basket making.

Near the village centre there is a barn, the location of one of the most revered memorials to the 1955-59 Liberation Struggle. Here on 2 September 1958 the four EOKA fighters Andreas Karyos, Elias Papakyriakou, Fotis Pittas and Christos Samaras died after a long battle against British troops.

POTAMOS

The estuary of Potamos is a picturesque fishing shelter. The remains of a Venetian period watch-tower are nearby. Arthur Rimbaud, the French poet whose work influenced the surrealists (1854-1891), worked in this area in the early 1880s.

XYLOFAGOU VILLAGE

The village church of Agios Georgios was built and decorated in the late 15th century. A new iconostasis was built in 1770 and later the church was turned into a monastery. The Annunciation and the Nativity are amongst the church’s most important wall paintings.
Ten Byzantine period churches from Troodos are listed UNESCO World Heritage Sites: Stavros tou Agiasmati, Panagia tou Araka, Timios Stavros at Pelendri, Agios Nikolaos tis Stegis, Panagia Podithou, Panagia Asinou, Agios Ioannis Lambadistis, Panagia (Moutoulla), Archangelos Michael at Pedoulas and Sotiros at Palaichori.

The imposing Troodos mountain range raises its highest peak to 1951m above sea level and stretches across most of the southern and western part of Cyprus. This tranquil region provides a cool refuge for long walks in the summer among idyllic pine scented forests. Covered in snow in winter, it offers an opportunity for skiing and other winter sports.

Nestled in the Troodos mountains are some of the most beautiful hill resorts of the island, with mountain streams, Byzantine monasteries and picturesque villages built on terraced hillsides. The Troodos area has been renowned since antiquity for its rich mines. In Byzantine times it became a centre for art, as monks and ordinary citizens built churches and monasteries far from the Arab raid threatened coastal areas. The Cyprus Tourism Organisation, in cooperation with the Forestry Department, has issued a publication with information on various nature trail options, many in the Troodos area. Besides the Machairas region to the east and the

Kykkos Monastery
Troodos proper region surrounding the tallest peak of Mount Olympus (1951m), there are four other distinct regions, each with its own character and charm. These regions are the Pitsilia area to the east of Mount Olympus, the Solea Valley to the north, the Marathasa Valley to the west and the Krassochnoria region to the south (the northwestern part of Limassol district).

Troodos Visitor Centre is situated 200m west of Troodos square (Plateia). It is the first of its kind in Cyprus and provides information about the Troodos National Park, its importance in the development of the region, the various facilities and activities available here, as well as information about the mountain environment in general. The Centre has a reception area with information on the geology, flora and fauna of the Troodos mountain range. A nature trail where one can see a good sample of various plants and rock formations of the region is linked to the building.

TROODOS RESORT
Situated near Troodos, Platres is the largest and most stylish mountain resort in the Lemesos (Limassol) district. Platres is a popular place for excursions and a refuge from the intense summer heat. The beauty of the area was immortalised in a poem by Greek Nobel laureate George Seferis. Mesa Potamos monastery is an old monastery near Platres situated in an idyllic area with a small waterfall.

The region east of Mount Olympos is known as Pitsilia and includes about 40 villages. Its tallest peaks are Madari (1612m) and Papoutsia (1554m). The picturesque villages nestle on the mountainside amid vineyards, or are hidden in valleys, maintaining much of their traditional charm. The surrounding hills and valleys are full of vines, almond, hazelnut, walnut and other fruit trees. The changing landscape, the variety of shapes and colours, the old churches and chapels and the warm hospitality of the local inhabitants make the Pitsilia region one of the most beautiful parts of Cyprus. The Pitsilia area is accessible either from Lemesos (Limassol), or from Lefkosia (Nicosia).

From Lemesos: Lemesos - Gerasa - Agios Theodoros - Agros road or Lemesos - Trimiklini - Pelendri - Agros road.

From Lefkosia: Lefkosia - Palaichori - Agros road or Lefkosia - Kakopetria - Karvounas - Kyperounta road

In the village centre stands the small church of Agios Mamas built in 1455 and decorated with wall paintings signed by artist Philipos Goul.

Agros is in the heart of the Pitsilia region situated in a beautiful valley with a dry climate and cool springs. The village was given its name by forty monks who came to Cyprus from Asia Minor during the iconoclastic period and named it after the place they had left behind, 'Megas Agros'. A 9th century monastery built by monks from Constantinople once stood where the 19th century Byzantine style church of Panagia Eleousa stands today. Agros also has a museum of icons. The village is also known for its traditional products such as aromatic rosewater, ‘hiromeri’ (smoked ham), ‘loukanika’ (spicy smoked sausages) and ‘lountza’ (smoked fillet of pork).
PALAICHORI VILLAGE

4.5km from Lefkosia (Nicosia) on the Lefkosia - Agors - Lemesos road
1.5km from Agors village

As its name implies (‘palaio’ means old), this is a very old village. The village is mentioned in 13th century documents and it is believed the King of Cyprus Henry II gave it to the Knights Templars. Even today some of the surnames of the inhabitants have Latin roots. The 16th century church of Panagia Chrysopantanassa has marvelous wall paintings.

Also worth a visit are the Liberation Struggle Museum in a house, which was once a hide-out for 1955-59 EOKA fighters, as well as the Monument to the Cypriot Mother which overlooks the region. The village is famous for its smoked ham and spicy sausages.

1. The Church of the Transfiguration of the Saviour (Metamorfosi tou Sotiros)

Open all the year round
Tuesday, Wednesday: 10:00-13:00

A listed UNESCO World Heritage Site, the church is an early 16th century chapel on the hill overlooking the village. Its interior is completely painted with one of the most accomplished series of murals of the post-Byzantine period.

2. Byzantine Heritage Museum

Open all the year round

Tel. 22652562, 99587292

About 3km outside the village of Platanistasa there is the renowned church of Stavros tou Agiasmati, a listed UNESCO World Heritage Site. It retains the most complete cycles of mural paintings of the second half of the 15th century.
LAGOUDERA VILLAGE

The Church of Panagia tou Araka

The 12th century church of Panagia tou Araka is a listed UNESCO World Heritage Site. It contains some of the finest frescoes of the late Comnenian style (1192) comparable to those prevailing throughout Greece, the Balkans and Russia. The church along with the churches of Asinou and of Agios Nikolaos tis Stegis, are considered to be the most important Byzantine period churches on the island. Visitors may ask the priest to open the church.

SPILIA VILLAGE

Olive press

A single-room stone building with a pitched roof, restored by the Department of Antiquities in 1955. The 19th century wooden olive press machine, as well as the stone olive mill and its millstones are well preserved. Tools for producing olive oil are displayed inside. Visitors may ask for the entrance key from the “Association of Expatriates and Friends of Spilia–Kourdali” building, next to the olive press.

KOURDALI VILLAGE

The Church of Panagia Chrysokourdaliotissa

A three-aisled church with a steep pitched roof and flat roof tiles. It was built in the 16th century as the chapel of a monastery dedicated to the Virgin Mary and founded by deacon Ioannis Kourdalis, according to the foundation stone. The wall paintings are from the same period, with western influences.

The icon-stand is a beautiful example of 16th and 17th century woodcarving, with icons from this period. Excellent examples of wood carving make up the old church pews, dating to the 16th century.

KYPEROUNTA VILLAGE

The Church of Timios Stavros and Ecclesiastical Museum

The church of Timios Stavros (Church of the Holy Cross) houses the ecclesiastical museum which contains icons and religious objects belonging to the village churches. It also has a garden with traditional plants and herbs.
PELENDRI VILLAGE

The Church of Timios Stavros (Church of the Holy Cross)

The village of Pelendri was once the property of Jean de Lusignan, son of the Lusignan King of Cyprus, Hugh IV. There are two interesting churches in the village. One is the 14th century church of Timios Stavros with superb wall paintings of the Paleologian and other periods. It is a listed UNESCO World Heritage Site. The other is the church of Panagia Katholiki in the middle of the village, which dates to the early 16th century. It has paintings of the Italo-Byzantine style.

SOLEA VALLEY

The beautiful valley of Solea is situated along the main Lefkosia–Troodos road (56km from Lefkosia, 56km from Lemesos via Kato Amiantos).

The picturesque mountain villages of Galata and Kakopetria are popular hillside resorts with a range of hotels and restaurants, but they also retain much of their traditional architecture. Both villages are famous for their Byzantine churches. Other charming villages in the area are Evrychou, Flasou and Korakou.

KAKOPETRIA VILLAGE

Kakopetria is a popular hill resort with a beautiful central square and many traditional houses that have been restored. The old quarter of the village is a listed area where old houses have been carefully restored or reconstructed. The small 16th century church of Panagia Theotokos still retains about half of its original wall paintings. The same applies to the church of Agios Georgios Perachoritis, to the east of the village dating to the early 16th century.

The Church of Agios Nikolaos tis Stegis

The church of Agios Nikolaos tis Stegis (St. Nicholas of the Roof) stands about 5km from Kakopetria. It once belonged to a monastery complex. It is covered entirely in wall paintings dating from the 11th to the 17th centuries and is considered one of the most interesting Byzantine churches on the island. It derives its name from its pitched wooden roof. The church is a listed UNESCO World Heritage Site.
Marathasa is a fertile valley, known for its cherry trees, situated on the northern slopes of the Troodos range. It is dotted with picturesque villages, such as Kalopanagiotis, Moutoullas and Pedoulas. It can be reached from the north along the Lefkosia-Evrychou-Troodos road and from the south along the Lemesos-Platres-Prodromos road.

   Museum open daily: 10:00-18:00
   March-November
   10:00-16:00 in December, January and February
   Entrance free

   The painted church of the Archangelos Michael is situated in the lowest part of the village. It is a listed UNESCO World Heritage Site and dates to 1474. It has a pitched wooden roof typical of the Troodos churches. The wall paintings are in the local post-Byzantine style that developed prior to Venetian rule.

   Pedoulas Byzantine museum is located a few metres away from the church. It was established to house and preserve icons and artifacts dating from the 12th century. All the exhibits come from churches in the region.

2. Folk Art Museum

   Tel: 22952140
   Open daily except Mondays: 10:00-16:00
   Entrance free

   The Folk Art Museum exhibits depict the way of life, customs, traditions and history of the Marathasa village communities. On view are traditional rural objects, such as local dresses, wood-carved furniture and other household and agricultural objects.

MOUTOULLAS VILLAGE

The Church of Panagia tou Moutoulla

*To arrange a visit:
Tel: 22952341*

The tiny 13th century chapel of Panagia tou Moutoulla has a steep-pitched wooden roof and frescoes dating to 1280. It is a listed UNESCO World Heritage Site. The village of Moutoullas has an ongoing tradition for carved wooden basins.
The best-known and richest monastery of Cyprus, Kykkos Monastery was founded in 1100 and dedicated to the Virgin Mary. It possesses one of three surviving icons ascribed to Saint Luke. It is covered in silver gilt, enclosed in a shrine of tortoiseshell and mother-of-pearl, and stands in front of the icon-stand. The museum is an integral part of the monastery and houses a priceless collection of icons, consecrated vessels, manuscripts and Cypriot antiquities.

The first President of Cyprus, Archbishop Makarios III served as a novice here. At his wish, he was buried at Throni, a scenic location 3km west of the monastery. Annual religious fairs (panigiria) are held at Kykko on 15 August and 8 September.

Trooditissa Monastery is situated in a beautiful spot among pine trees. It was originally founded in the 13th century, but the present church was built in 1731. The church contains a priceless silver-plated icon of the Virgin Mary brought from Asia Minor. The monastery is closed to the public.
BYZANTINE ROUTE

Visit the famous Byzantine churches of Cyprus, with their rare icons and superb frescoes. Ten of these churches are listed UNESCO World Heritage Sites. Scattered throughout the Troodos mountain regions of Marathasa, Solea and Pitsilia, and set in beautiful surroundings among the pine trees, they are bound to impress you.

APPHRODITE CULTURAL ROUTE

Follow in the footsteps of Aphrodite, the mythological Olympian goddess of love and beauty and protectress of Cyprus. The route focuses on the archaeological sites dedicated to the ancient cult of Aphrodite and includes Palaipafos (Kouklia), Amathous and Kition. These are linked to other sites and museums with artifacts related to the goddess. Wander through layers of history, culture and mythology as you learn all about her birth, mythology, character, the rituals connected with her cult, as well as plants and seashells associated with her.
